By Christine D. Arendano

PRESIDENT AQUINO is unfazed by the low grades given to him by groups or people in lieu of his performance during his first 100 days in office, Malacañang said yesterday.

"The President has said he will do his best," Malacañang said.

Church OKs ceasefire

Cites need 'to pause, assess and pray'

By Jocelyn R. Uy
and Herman Borsador

CATHOLIC CHURCH leaders yesterday acceded to a Palace request for a ceasefire over the explosive issue of birth control.

"We respect the request of Malacañang for a ceasefire to calm everyone," the executive secretary of the Catholic Bishops' Conference of the Philippines (CBCP) Commission on Family and Life said, even as the Palace appealed to everyone to avoid inflammatory statements.

"We are according to the request for as not to issue any inflammatory statements and the bishops and the President come to a face-to-face dialogue," Fr. Melvin Castro said in a phone interview with reporters.

But Castro made it clear that the Church is strongly opposed to the use of artificial contraceptives to check the country's population growth—what's compromising on its position.

Presidential spokesperson Edwin Lucendo said Malacañang was seeking a representative to the bishops to strengthen

DepEd to announce K+12 program today

By Terna Quinsanda

HOW WELL an educational reform will improve basic education when schools are forced to hold classes in three shifts and students can't understand their lessons because they are hungry?

Fr. Buenaventura Nebres, the president of Ateneo de Manila University, would not be sure the Philippine administration's proposed two-year extension of the 10-year basic education cycle would lift the quality of education.

"This all sounds very nice, but if you get down to the ground, it doesn't make sense," Nebres told a forum last week on the proposed K+12 (Kindergarten plus 12) program.

The Department of Education (DepEd) will announce today the administration's priority program to catch up with the rest of the world facing a 12-year basic education cycle in spite of advanced lack of funds and the need to amend the 1985 education law.

US study: Teens top users of condom

A WIDE-RANGING study of American sexual behavior, based on the largest nationally representative survey since 1992, has found that condom use is increasing, the more for sexually active teenagers.

Indeed, US teenagers are more responsible than adults about using condoms, the researchers reported in a study that is coming out on Monday (Tuesday in Manila).

A real inquiry of sexually active 14- to 17-year-olds said they had used a condom the last time they had intercourse, compared with well under half of US adults involved in casual liaisons.

"I think that just as teenagers quickly develop an expectation that they're going to learn to drive so that when they live, there's the same general widespread sense among contemporary teenagers that as you get to the point where you start thinking about having sex, condoms are going to be part of that decision," said a co-author of the survey, Dr. J. Dennis Fortenberry, a professor of pediatrics at the School of Medicine of Indiana University.

PEPPER'S WEATH A year after Typhoon "Peping" triggered deadly landslides in Little Kibangan, a village in La Trinidad, Benguet, work on the damaged infrastructure remains unfinished.

La Trinidad folk hit gov't inaction

By Delmar Carillo, Yolanda Soriano and Johanna Morante
Inquirer Northern Luzon

HOUNDED by the inactivity of people killed in La Trinidad, Benguet, by landslides triggered by Typhoon "Peping" last year, local officials and residents are thankful there are no signs that a similar disaster will strike this year.

SPECIAL REPORT

But they are frustrated that the government has not moved fast enough to meet the needs of people uprooted by the destruction that left 77 people dead at Little Kibangan in Benguet and another 20 killed at Sulo Benguet in Benguet's Palawan.

Funds needed to make landslide-prone areas and disaster zones safe for the public have not come in because of changes in the national leadership.

No one knows where the 123 evacuees from Little Kibangan and Sulo Benguet went after being stranded for almost six months in 43 crowded tents at Benguet State University's Benguet State University.

La Niña has arrived, weathermen declare

By Kristine L. Alon

LA NINA is here. The Philippine Atmospheric, Geophysical and Astronomical Services Administration (PAGASA) yesterday declared the start of La Niña, noting that the country will experience below average rainfall until early 2011.

Pagasa said the cold phenomenon in the Pacific Ocean that started in July 2010 had peaked and reached the La Niña threshold.

It forecast this year's La Niña to be "moderate to strong," which is "likely to continue until 2011."

The La Niña phenomenon refers to the abnormal cooling of certain surface temperatures in the equatorial Pacific, where effects are usually the opposite of El Niño's.

It states, when the country experienced last year, is the abnormal cooling of sea surface temperatures that has made it drought in some areas of the world and extreme wet condition in other parts.

The country last entered La Niña in 2007, which brought heavy rains that caused severe flooding in the eastern part of the country.

Pagasa officer-in-charge for weather and climate said the country would be experiencing more rain than the coming months.

"With the present anomalous strength of the current, we see the normal and extreme tropical rainfall during October-December season in Manila, coinciding with the start of the northeast monsoon period," Pagasa said in the bulletin.

"Sea temperatures are not so cold, conditions in the eastern part may not be as severe as last year, but the overall trend is towards the opposite of the last year," he added.

Pagasa advised local governments to take precautions on measures to mitigate the effects of the monsoon phenomenon, which he warned, could cause "death, theft, floods, and some adverse land, debris in forested areas."

COA bares setbacks in seed program

By Leticia B. Salaverria

THE AGRICULTURE administrative program to provide isolated seeds to poor farmers is hardly a success due to the inadequate procurement and distribution of seeds, the Commission on Audit (COA) has found.

In its 2009 report to the Department of Agriculture (DA), the COA said the DA provided less than half, or only 50.59 percent, of the 122,000 bags of certified seed that it was targeting to get under the Rapid Seed Supply Financing Project.

(Of the volume, less than half or 200,796 bags were distributed to farmer beneficiaries.)

The bags of seeds were distributed to 31,758 farmers. Less than one percent of the number may not among the intended beneficiaries in the service list. But the DA had submitted to the National Food Authority the COA said.

The Rapid Seed project aims to provide farmers with certified isolated seeds worth P12,000 per bag in order to increase their crop harvest without the cost of costly fertilizers. The farmers were supposed to pay only P600 per bag through the local government state-managed agencies only.

Among the reasons given for the low distribution of the seeds were:

- The farmers' desire to wait for the seeds until the quick harvest program of paying P600 for the Rapid Seed project.

- Thin lack of cash and access to seed.
- Lack and failure of bidding.
- Availability of cheap seeds.
- Sale of seeds to the public.
- The farmers' need for the procedure for seed supply.

The COA also said that the low distribution of the certified seeds—only 23 percent of the targeted volume—indicated that the seed system for government bought was not the one the farmers preferred or needed.

The annual number indicated that the distribution target could have been possible, in that the seed procurement and distribution were done more or beyond the planting season. It also declared that the farmers could not afford to pay P600 for a bag of seeds.

The audit agency recommended that the DA evaluate the seed requirements of the various regions and consult with three beneficiaries about their needs.

It said the department should determine the actual cropping season per service they would understand the farmers' seed requirements. They should strictly follow the distribution process prescribed under the program.

The DA should consider buying a non-monetary agreement with local government agencies to allow their roles and responsibilities when it comes to the Rapid Seed program, so that would be more consistent to the COA's findings.

House starts to tackle budget

By Leticia B. Salaverria

THE HOUSE OF Representatives yesterday began deliberations on the proposed P1,445-billion budget for 2011, with the opposition committee chair comparing the viability of the spending plan to trying to multiply a few loaves and fishes when the government's resources are still not enough to meet all of the people's demands.

Rep. Joseph Alayon said that the administration's plan to increase the budget deficit for 2011 and intended to bring it down to 2 percent by 2013.

But Minority Leader Edcel Lagarda criticized the plan, saying that there was no reason to expect that the budget deficit should remain at a low level, especially when the government is faced with the task of fulfilling the need for social and economic development.

Lagarda said the Philippines would start to leave a last lesson from other countries that have a higher budget deficit, but has accepted it because it must have more funds to fulfill their development.

The government would not have a budget and not need to know the deficit to know how to have more funds for the capital outlay and for the other social and economic, he said.

He added that the absence of funds by the government is a detriment to development.

"We could afford to increase our project deficit by 2013, higher than 2 percent, and still be able to manage the deficit and at the same time be able to spend more for economic and social services," he said.

Pakistan: Dozens of Europeans in terror training

ISLAMABAD... Dozens of European soldiers with European citizenship are believed to be taking part in the largest infiltration of northeastern Pakistan, Pakistan and Chinese intelligence officials are warning for the first time that could include secret agents in European capitals.

Officials have said phone intercepts and video tracking software to track soldiers with ties to Britain and other European countries to areas along the Afghan border. Al-Qaida would likely use such soldiers for a terror plot because they are more likely to be out of Pakistan cities. But clear such an attack is in the planning stage, the group of the US State Department to advise American interests in Europe to be vigilant. American and European security experts have been concerned that terrorism based in Pakistan may be plotting attacks in Europe with assault weapons, similar to the deadly 2002 shooting spree in Mumbai, India. US intelligence officials believe Osama bin Laden is behind the plot.

A senior official of Pakistan's Inter-Services Intelligence Agency or ISI, told The Associated Press that there are believed to be "several dozen" people with European citizenship, many of Islamic origin—among the Islamic extremists operating in the Indian border area.

The official, who spoke on condition of anonymity because he was not supposed to talk about classified information, in the media, said foreign are in the area also include Germans, Indians, Arabs and Turks, one of whom was a former F16 pilot in the Turkish air force.

"That shows you that some of the people who are coming are very well-educated," he said. "The official also said Pakistan authorities arrested two Russian phobos who infiltrated into Pakistan along with their families. "It was very surprising for us that they were claiming this is the plot (Islamic) ideology that they are working," he said.

Britain's communications monitoring agency, the Government Communications Intelligence, said there are as many as 30 British-born citizens in the border area, especially in the North-West Frontier district that has been the focus of recent missile strikes carried out by unmanned aircraft operated by the US.

Double phone conversations have been cracked from the border area in Pakistan to Britain, particularly England's Midlands, where there is a heavy Pakistan immigrant population, according to a British government official who spoke on condition of anonymity because the source police investigation is ongoing. US travel alert vague, frustrating

THE FBI's Department of Homeland Security issued a travel alert in response to reports of a threat to al-Qaida on Sunday but gave little detail.

Where is the threat? Europe? What is the target? Leaders, rulers, officials, diplomats, or anyone else? The alert says "What should Americans in Europe do?" "Be aware of their surroundings."

The alert's vagueness, issued after days of discussion inside the Obama administration, included the dilemma for the secretary of the United States and Europe over how to prohibit a threat that intelligence analysts said could be a real one.

The authorities do not want to be accused of hiding what they know. But they want to put the public on security.

The result is this: The alert is not a threat. It is a warning. It is a warning that there is a threat. It is a warning that there is a threat. It is a warning that there is a threat.

"My parents told me about the threat today in Libya, but I told them, 'Stop are you calling me?'" said Sam Popovich, 28, from Europe. "I'm in Europe, I'm in Europe, I'm in Europe," he said. "I'm in Europe, I'm in Europe, I'm in Europe," he said. "I'm in Europe, I'm in Europe, I'm in Europe," he said.

Steve Hoffman, a senior report on Georgetown University, said the alert is "a warning that there is a threat. It is a warning that there is a threat. It is a warning that there is a threat."

President Barack Obama cut with his national security team at Friday night and Saturday morning in the White House. White House officials said that the alert is "a warning that there is a threat. It is a warning that there is a threat. It is a warning that there is a threat."

A US intelligence official said on Sunday that the signature of the alert is "a warning that there is a threat. It is a warning that there is a threat. It is a warning that there is a threat."

Aromatherapy that doesn't trigger allergies

By Charles V. Moral

FOR SOME of us who suffer from this dreaded condition called allergic rhinitis, non-sedative sounds like a scary word.

While aromatherapy is, in fact, considered safe as a holistic cure for allergic rhinitis, sufferers like this writer are scared off by the strong, heady scent of essential oils that often trigger the allergies.

A brief exposure could cause sneezing, watery eyes and headaches that last for days, sometimes requiring a long-term and expensive course of prophylactic drugs.

It's common to hear of sufferers offering close of facial and body massages that are scented with oils and creams. Some even with their eyes closed and breathe their last for days, sometimes requiring a long-term and expensive course of prophylactic drugs.

"We advise those who suffer from rhinitis or allergic reactions to come in for consultation, to sniff and check if any of these scents trigger," said Bernadette De la Cruz, the regional training manager for Asia of Aromatherapy Associates, a UK-based maker of therapeutic-grade aromatherapy products and treatments. The brand and its treatments were recently introduced in "The Spa of Islands" (located inside the hotel) in a small room in the hotel.

No additives

All Aromatherapy Associates' essential oils are 100-percent plant extracts, meaning there's no change in their chemical composition, and they have no additives, "they should be okay for you," De la Cruz says. The brand doesn't use alcohol and synthetic oils that are used to improve the look of essential oils.

It's useful, providing, but nothing we haven't heard before, so we took it with a grain of salt.

Aromatherapy Associates' aromatherapy treatments claim to "liberally skin and provide nourishment to the deepest layer" using specialized pressure-point massage techniques. It's called a "Prescription Facial" as it's made to suit the client's skin condition for that particular day.

'Behaved barbarians'

By Tony Hughes
Contributor

PARROTS of Edgar emerged at the dawn of land, into rock in the mid-70s, when the frame for back-to-backs gave way gradually to The Vault, The Strawbeats, Time and a plaque of grumpy penny buns. That makes Puff's northern rider continuous to a new breed of younger young musicians.

While most of its contemporaries have now fallen off the radar, Pull still stands out as one that swings between doggie ballads and evening stilette-andward broadsides. Forlorn and pop lyrics here have tropical overtones and their live concert took with the rockier strands of mid-century rock, except that everything in the songs with lyrics is all fun.

The lovely, loose album. 3 1/2 stars. —David A. Jas

The family name is "Middlebury."
